A BLACK TECH MUSIC EXPERIENCE

HiiWAV Fest is a tech and music street festival experience hosted at HiiWAV's new headquarters in Oakland, CA. Designed to highlight the innovations and ingenuity of the Bay Area's Black community through live performances, immersive AR/VR experiences, and emerging technology. Representing the Afrofuturistic spirit of Oakland and showcasing black identity and culture in music, technology, and community.

In a city renowned for its social justice, music, and tech scene, Black communities often find themselves on the sidelines of recognition and wealth. HiiWAV Fest is our response—a platform for Black creatives to shine, to innovate, and to reclaim their rightful place at the forefront of our city's cultural landscape.

Led by HiiWAV residents and powered by the creative forces of Grand Nationxl and Solid Grounds, HiiWav Fest is more than just an event; it's a collaborative force for change. With a network of over 200 artists and 20 strategic partnerships, we're driving community engagement, fostering creativity, and amplifying diverse voices through AI workshops, marketing initiatives, and groundbreaking collaborations.

"HiiWAV Fest is a movement toward redefining the cultural and technological narrative of Oakland," said Bosko Kante.

OAKLAND, CA / ACCESSWIRE / May 29, 2024 / HiiWAV, a nonprofit creative incubator for Black artist-led music and tech startups, proudly announces HiiWAV FEST. Taking place on June 8th at 2781 Telegraph Avenue, this free outdoor event merges AI & VR technology with dynamic musical performances in a celebration of Black creativity and innovation.

Just 26 days before the event, the City of Oakland informed HiiWAV that a city grant promised in support of the festival would be delayed indefinitely due to the city's $170M budget deficit. HiiWAV immediately sent out a call for support. Within 48-hours of the viral post, Selena Wilson (EOYDC), Lynne Hoey (Kataly), & Zoo Labs answered the call with assistance and connections to sponsors East Bay Community Foundation, Kapor Center, and Tides Foundation, who together with Meta, Kaiser Permanente, & Community Bank of the Bay, ensured the event could go on. You can join in to support HiiWAV Fest via hiiwav.org/donate.

HiiWAV Fest also serves as the culmination of HiiWAV's annual AFRO AI MVP incubator, with the winner of the $10,000 grant awarded to the top Black artist-led AI music tech startup to be announced on stage.

About HiiWAV:

Bosko Kante, a songwriter/performer on Grammy-winning albums by Kanye West and Dua Lipa, and a music producer/talkbox artist for E-40 and J. Cole, founded HiiWAV. Initiatives include the AFRO AI Incubator for musicians and the purchase of 2781 Telegraph in 2023. HiiWAV's founding team-Maya Kante, Miles Dotson, and Bosko-are committed to empowering Black artist-preneurs with cutting-edge tech, entrepreneurship education, capital, performance opportunities, and growth mindset coaching.

Event Highlights:

- Live Performances: Legendary hip-hop act The Pharcyde, joins Sol Development, Dame Drummer, The Prospect Band, and Honey Gold, all set to electrify the audience with their performances.
- Startup Showcase: The AFRO AI MVP program will spotlight startups such as Kev Choice's Choice Scores, RyanNicole's Worth.AI, Meaghan Maples' 1763 Co., Nocturnal Summer, and GooRoo, demonstrating new human-centered AI Music technology.

The Pharcyde Headlines a Free Music Technology Fest in Oakland

By Nastia Voynovskaya  Jun 6

The Pharcyde plays Hiero Day in Oakland on Monday, September 3, 2018. (Estefany Gonzalez)

It's not too often that heavy hitters like The Pharcyde perform in a small Oakland storefront. The "Passin' Me By" hitmakers led the West Coast's alternative hip-hop scene of the '90s along with Bay Area locals like Hieroglyphics, and on June 8 they headline Hii WAV Fest, a free event that celebrates Black artistry and ingenuity.

Hii WAV, an Oakland nonprofit that connects artists with technology and entrepreneurial resources, is throwing the event in their 28th Street and Telegraph Avenue recording studio. In addition to the Pharcyde's performance, legendary producer Just Blaze, who made hits with Jay-Z, Kanye West and Mariah Carey in the 2000s, will talk about his industry experience in a fireside chat.

HiiIWAV FEST made a significant impact by introducing new technology to the community and inspiring attendees to embrace its possibilities. The event featured immersive AR/VR experiences, including interactive demos by META with their Ray-Ban smart glasses and Quest 3s, offering many attendees their first hands-on experience with these advanced technologies. Workshops in AI for music production and image generation further expanded the horizons of participants, many of whom were exploring these tools for the first time.

An inspiring conversation between legendary hip-hop producer and tech startup founder Just Blaze and HiiIWAV founder Bosko Kante emphasized the potential for Black creatives to leverage technology for empowerment and innovation. The festival also spotlighted the achievements of the AFRO AI program, culminating in the awarding of a $10,000 grant to a standout AI startup Choice Scores, further highlighting the impact of emerging technologies on the community.

Solid Grounds

Event coordination businesses GrandNationxl and Solid Grounds received four month AI skills training as part of the HiiWAV FEST development program.

The AI Workforce Development Impact initiative at the Highway Festival served as a pivotal program to advance the technological proficiency of local event planning companies, specifically Solid Grounds and Grand National. This four month initiative was designed to immerse these companies in the latest AI technologies, with a particular focus on leveraging Large Language Models (LLMs) and other cutting-edge AI-driven tools to optimize their event planning processes. By integrating these advanced technologies into their workflows, the companies were able to automate repetitive tasks, enhance data-driven decision-making, and produce high-quality outputs more efficiently.

A core component of the training involved the advanced application of LLMs for automating communication tasks. These models were used to generate and refine communication templates, automate vendor outreach, and streamline internal communications, all while maintaining a high degree of personalization and accuracy. The companies also learned advanced Google Sheets functions, enabling them to create dynamic financial models, real-time budget tracking, and sophisticated cash flow forecasts. This enabled a level of precision and efficiency in financial management that significantly reduced the overhead typically associated with large-scale events.

In addition to process automation, the AI tools trained at the festival included the use of generative AI for content creation. Solid Grounds and Grand National were introduced to AI-powered image and video editing software, which allowed them to create visually stunning promotional materials with minimal manual input. By integrating AI-driven design tools into their workflow, they could produce high-impact visuals and multimedia content at a fraction of the traditional cost, thereby elevating the overall quality of the festival while keeping expenses under control. This combination of LLMs and generative AI not only enhanced the festival's execution but also positioned these companies as leaders in the application of AI within the event planning industry.
